TURKS MAKE PLANS TO INVADE THRACE

Mustapha Kemal Would Pursue Defeated Greeks Into Europe

ENGLISH MAKE MOVE TO ATTAIN HARMONY

Lord Curzon Will Attempt to Convert French to British Policy-England to Act Even Though Other Nations Fail to Lend Aid

London, Sept. 19 (By the Associated Press) .- For the time being the scene shifts to Paris where Lord Curzon the British secretary for foreign affairs, will seek to attain harmony of views between his own and the French government. The ministerial conferences in London have ended for the moment, and Premier Lloyd George has gone to the country for a few days' rest.

That the general situation is regarded as easier is shown by the fact that Mustapha Kemal Pasha, leader of the Turkish nationalists, is apparently making no new move, although according to an Athens report which has reached London, he left Smyrna for Nicomedia, adjoining Ismid, south of Constantinople, while it is said tonight that Admiral Earl Beatty may find it unnecessary to proceed to Paris.

On the other hand, perhaps, the most important news o fthe day comes in the Associated Press dispatches from Constantinople stating that Kemal has sought permission of the allies to occupy part of Thrace immediately and discuss the question of the status of the Dardanelles later in connection with the general peace problem and with the participation of the Black Sea countries.

This touches the crux of the whole question. There may possibly be an between Great Britain. agreement France and Italy on the question of the neutrality of the straits and a further agreement that Constantinople shall eventually be returned to the Turks under certain conditions. But the question of the future of Thrace, outside the neutral zone, such an agreement is lacking.

Kemal Pasha seemingly takes the view that there is nothing in the maintainance of the neutrality of the straits and the neutral zone to prevent his forces from pursuing the defeated Greeks into those portions of Thrace outside the neutral zone. The British contention is that under no circulstances wil lthe Turks be allowed to cross into Europe until peace has been settled. But is not certain that France sees eye to eye with Great Britain in this matter.

In official circles in London it is not anticipated that there will be any peace conference. It is understood instructions given to Lord Curzon by the cabinet on the general line of policy Poincare that if France refuses to Near East, she may stand to lose, as fast with him today. she did many years ago, when she refused to join England in the bombard- without a formal reply from the ment of Alexandria and so started a train of events which brought Egypt ings concerning the neutral zone. House Hears Message in Silence and

and Defers Action Until Today

PRESIDENT HARDING

OPPONENTS EXPECT

Washington, Sept. 19 .- President Harding vetoed the soldiers' bonus bill today, informing congress in a written message that while he was in accord with "the avowed purpose" of the measure he did not subscribe to its provisions. The executive's action was regarded generally in Washington as making improbable a bonus for the World war veterans, at least for some time to come, as it appeared to be almost certain that the veto would be sustained by the senate. A vote in the house was planned for tomorrow with senate action to follow later in the day or on Thursday. Mr. Harding set forth a number of reasons for returning the bill to the house without his approval. These included: Failure of congress to provide a means of financing.

That inevitably the bonus would mean increased taxation.

That the legislation would wipe out everything thus far accomplished to reduce government expenditures wherever possible.

That a peace bestowal on the exservice men was "a perversion of public funds." and suggested "that future defense is to be inspired by compensation rather than consciousness of duty to flag and country."

That to add one-sixth of the total sum of the public debt for distribution among less than 5,000,000, of 110-000,000 people would undermine confidence. The public credit was builded, and "established the precedent of distributing public funds whenever the proposal and the numbers affected make it seem politically appealing to do so."

That the $10,000,000,000 of maturing public debt in the next six years would be difficult to meet without adding the complication of added borowings on account of a bnus.

That the adjusted service certifiate plan of payment, with its bank and government loan provisions, was little less than a certified inability of the government to pay and invited "a practice of sacrificial barter" by the veterans.

That the bonus would not diminish the later obligation in the way of pensions to the World war veterans. Would Cost Billions

Asserting that this obligation would "cost more billions than I venture to suggest," the president declared each burial and the Argonaut company sponsor for the bonus in the house, that a rational financial policy today is necessary to make the nation ready E. A. Stent, vice president of the rectly in front of the reading clerk for the expenditure which is certain

> Mr. Harding also called attention to the sums now being expended for the care of the diseased, disabled or dependent and asserted that the total cost of this work, with insurance liability added. probably would exceed $25,000,000.

Only once did the president refer to the interest on the foreign debt out of which proponents of the bonus have contended it could be paid. He told congress that the government was facing a deficit of $650,000,000 during the current fiscal year and a further deficit for the year succeeding "even after counting upon all interest collections on foreign indebtedness which the government is likely to receive."

As to the immediate and ultimate cost of the bonus, Mr. Harding said this was not definitely known. Treasury estimates, based on what seemed the most likely exercise of the options, he continued figured the direct cost at $796,000,000 for the first four years and a total cost in excess of $4,000,000. He added that no estimate of "the larger indirect cost" ever had been made.

The veto message was transmitted to the house by a White House messenger and its reading by a clerk was begun seven minutes after its delivery at 3:10 p. m. There was a full attendance of members, many of whom had returned to the capital to vote on the question of over riding the
